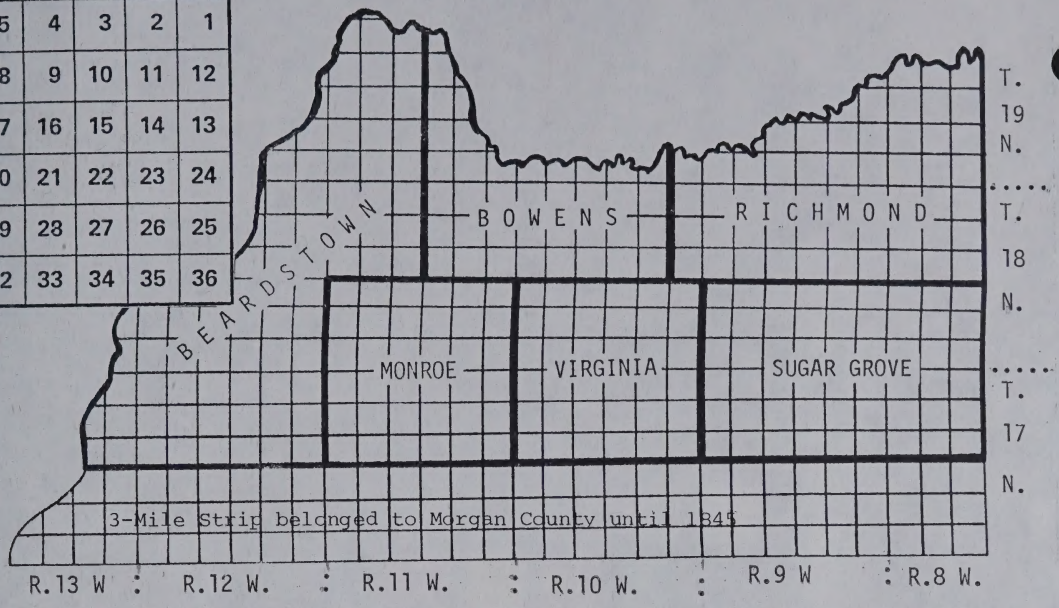
CASS COUNTY - 1837



Joshua P. Crow, Amos Bonney and George F. Miller were elected comminnioners of the newly formed County of Cass on the seventh day of August, 1837. Convening August 1837, the oath of office was administered to them by Thomas Pogue, an acting Justice of the Peace, in and for said County.

The Commissioners proceeded to divide the County into six Magistrates and Constable's Districts, as shown on the above map. The three mile strip running East and West Across the South of the County was not made a part of Cass County until May 1845. It remained in Morgan County.

Cass was the last County in the State of Illinois to adopt township organization in 1924.
